

Palliative care in northern Queensland networking dinner

Northern Queensland Primary Health Network (NQPHN) invites you for a free education dinner to learn, network, and share experiences with your colleagues in the sector.

Palliative care has two dynamics; science-based practice, and relationships between patient, family, and health professional. Each dynamic is essential for quality palliative care.

Register to reserve your place!

Keynote sessions include:

- Symptom management in the palliative care setting.
- Supporting advance care planning in terminal care practice.
- Afterhours specialist palliative care advice and palliative care resources.
- Defining palliative support services outside the hospital environment.
- Voluntary assisted dying and the work of Queensland Voluntary Assisted Dying (QVAD).
- Compassionate Communities network and community palliative care at home on country.
- Navigating health pathways, telehealth, and the role of NQPHN.

This activity is pending RACGP and ACCRM approval.
