

Improving outcomes for Australians living with gout

EOI for healthcare professionals

Northern Queensland Primary Health Network (NQPHN) and the Quality Use of Medicines Alliance, a consortium of organisations working in the health sector, are working together to support consumer health literacy and improve the quality use of medicines for people living with gout.

Healthcare professionals are invited to register their expressions of interest (EOIs) to participate in an intervention program aimed at building the capability of health professionals working in Aboriginal health services including:

- Aboriginal Health Workers and Practitioners
- GPs and GP Registrars
- pharmacists
- nurses.
