NORTHERN QUEENSLAND
An Australian Government Initiative

Improving childhood immunisation rates using AI-based voice technology

Northern Queensland Primary Health Network (NQPHN) is inviting general practices to register their interest in a new initiative aimed at improving childhood immunisation rates for children aged 19 months and above.

This program will provide participating practices with access to an AI-based recall system using GoShare's proven voice technology. The system supports practices to:

- › recall parents and guardians
- › provide education on the importance of timely childhood immunisation
- › encourage immunisations in line with the National Immunisation Program (NIP).

Register your interest

To help us understand interest and plan implementation, practices are asked to complete a short survey to register. To register, click here.
